5.2 Tender Game Auction

ABOUT TENDER AUCTIONS

The online auction functionality allows users to sell and buy a specific lot of Wildlife on a tender principle. These specific lots are allocated a specific timeline to bid for the specific lot. The bidding process is live and interactive, and users can track the bidding for the period allocated to the lot. At the closing of the lot, an email is sent to both parties (buyer and seller) confirming the successful bidder of the outcome of the online auction. The seller of the lot must then accept the final bid for the lot. Tender auction functionality allows Wildlife users to perform day-to-day, anytime buying online by a tendering bidding process. This allows the user to load, buy and sell Wildlife online on the website immediately, but only to registered users of the website.

ABOUT REAL-TIME ONLINE AUCTIONS

A Real-Time auction is registered on our website and is advertised to take place at a certain time. It can be any time of day but will most likely be in the evening, when buyers have had time to settle in behind their computers. There is no limit to the number of buyers who can load lots, but in the interest of effective time management, the aim will be not to offer more than 50 lots per auction.

Sellers can load lots themselves, or a Wildlife Auctions representative can do it on their behalf. Two photographs will be available per lot, and all information relevant to the lot will be loaded and available. Animals do not have to be in a boma, so capturing can take place after the auction, which lessens the stress on the animals, leading to less mortality. The costs incurred by the seller are of course decidedly lower as the animals do not need to be transported to boma's before the auction. Good pictures and accurate information are thus of cardinal importance and will have an impact on prices achieved.

ABOUT TIMED OR SILENT AUCTIONS

Wildlife Auctions Timed or Silent auction technology has the most advanced functionality for the wildlife industry available in the market. The software is specifically developed for the wildlife industry and allows for unlimited amounts of data and information for each lot loaded and state-of-the-art graphics and a display for easy reference for users.

Summary

T's & C's

Technical

Wildlife Auctions has developed an online auction portal, which will allow the wildlife industry to move into the world of online technology, with live Wildlife Auctions for the first time in Southern Africa.

These online auctions are a joint cooperative initiative between live auctions, auctioneers, and Wildlife Auctions. The portal allows the stakeholders in the wildlife industry to participate in live online auctions on the internet. It also allows wildlife farmers and industry players to view auctions online via video streaming technology on the internet. This technology has been developed in conjunction with major players in the industry and will move the wildlife industry forward into the online world of the internet, thereby assisting stakeholders and the wildlife industry to reach all corners of the world, while enabling buyers of wildlife to participate in auctions from anywhere where there is internet connectivity.
